Part III Reading Comprehension (30 points, 2 points each)

Directions: In this part there are 3 passages. Each passage is followed by 5 questions or unfinished sentences. For each of them there are 4 choices marked A, B, C and D. Choose the best answer and mark your choice on the Answer Sheet with a single line through the center.

Passage 1

Questions 31 to 35 are based on the following passage.

A study of art history might be a good way to learn more about a culture than is possible to learn in general history classes. Most typical history courses concentrate on politics, economics and war. But art history focuses on much more than this because art reflects not only the political values of a people, but also religious beliefs, emotions and psychology. In addition, information about the daily activities of our ancestors can be provided by art. In short, art expresses the essential qualities of a time and a place, and a study of it clearly offers us a deeper understanding than can be found in most history books.

In history books, objective information about the political life of a country is presented; that is, facts about politics are given, but opinions are not expressed. Art, on the other hand, is subjective: it reflects emotions and opinions. The great Spanish painter Francisco Goya was perhaps the first truly "political" artist. In his well-known painting The Third of May, 1808, he criticized the Spanish government for its abuse (滥用) of power over people.

In the same way, art can reflect a culture's religious beliefs. For hundreds of years in Europe, religious art had been almost the only type of art that existed. Churches and other religious buildings were filled with paintings that described people and stories from the Bible. Although most people couldn't read, they could still understand the Bible stories in the pictures on church walls. By contrast, one of the main characteristics of art in the Middle East was (and still is) its absence of human and animal images. This reflects the Islamic belief that statues (雕像) are not holy.

- 31. More can be learned about a culture from a study of art history than general history because
 - A. art history shows us nothing but the political values
 - B. general history only focuses on politics
 - C. art history gives us an insight into the essential qualities of a time and a place
 - D. general history concerns only religious beliefs, emotions and psychology
- 32. Art is subjective in that
 - A. a personal and emotional view of history is presented through it
 - B. it only reflects people's anger or sadness about social problems
 - C. it can easily arouse people's anger about their government
 - D. artists were or are religious, who reflect only the religious aspect of the society
- 33. Which of the following statements is TRUE according to the passage?
 - A. In history books political views of people are entirely presented.
 - B. Francisco Goya expressed his religious belief in his painting The Third of May, 1808
 - C. In the Middle East, you can hardly find animal or human figures on palaces or other building.
 - D. For centuries in Europe, painters had only painted on walls of churches or other religious

| | Blit | nd people can "see" things by using other parts of their bodies. This fact may help us to |
| unde | ersta | nd our feelings about color. If blind people can sense color differences, then perhaps we, too, |
| are a | ıffec | ted by color unconsciously(无意识地)。 |
| | Ma | nufacturers have discovered by experience that sugar sells badly in green wrappings, that blue |

| disc | over | ies have grown into a branch of color psychology. |
| | Col | or psychology now finds application in everything from fashion to decoration. Some of our |
| - | | ces are clearly psychological. Dark blue is the color of the night sky and therefore associated |
| | | m, while yellow is a day color with associations of energy and incentive (刺激). For a primitive |
| man | , act | ivity during the day meant hunting and attacking, while he soon saw red as the color of blood |
| and | ang | er and the heat that came with effort. And green is associated with passive defense and |
| self- | • | ection. |
| | Exp | periments have shown that colors, partly because of their psychological associations, also have a |
| | - | ychological effect. People exposed to bright red show an increase in breath, in heartbeat and in |
| bloo | d pr | ressure; red is exciting. Similar exposure to pure blue has exactly the opposite effect; it is a |
| caln | ning | color. Because of its exciting meaning, red is chosen as the signal for danger, but closer analysis |
| shov | vs th | at a vivid yellow can produce a more basic state of alarm. So fire engines and ambulances in |
| som | e ad | vanced communities are now rushing around in bright yellow colors that stop the traffic dead. |
| 36. | Our | preferences for certain colors are according to the passage. |
| | A. | associated with the time of the day |
| | B. | dependent on our personalities |
| | C. | are linked with our ancestors |
| | D. | partly due to psychological factors |
| 37. | If p | eople are exposed to bright red, which of the following things does NOT happen? |

A. They breathe faster.B. They feel satisfied.

C. Their blood pressure rises.

- D. Their hearts beat faster.
- 38. Which of the following statements is NOT true according to the passage?
 - A. Color probably has an effect on us which we are not conscious of.
 - B. Yellow fire engines have caused many bad accidents in some advanced communities.
 - C. People exposed to pure blue start to breathe more slowly.
 - D. The psychology of color is of some practical use.
- 39. Which of the following statements is TRUE according to the passage?
 - A. Manufacturers often sell sugar in green wrapping.
 - B. Dark blue brings people the feeling of being energetic.
 - C. Primitive people associated heat and anger with red.
 - D. Green and yellow are associated with calm and passive defense.
- 40. Which of the following could be the most suitable title for the passage?
 - A. The Branch of Color Psychology
 - B. Color and Its Meanings
 - C. The Practical Use of Color Psychology
 - D. Color and Feelings.

Passage 3

Questions 41 to 45 are based on the following passage.

Dr. Mary Jo Bane is the associate director of the Center for Research on Women. Her recent study found "surprising evidence of the persistence of American commitments to family life", which cast doubt on some common myths about American family.

Myth 1: The American Family is Dying Because of the Soaring Divorce Rate.

According to Dr. Bane's study, the American family is changing, not dying. It is becoming smaller and the divorce rate is high. But Dr. Bane says that despite the high divorce rate, marriage has never been more popular. The majority of divorced people re-marry, but only 2% marry more than twice. Most marriages last a long time, and a large proportion of divorces are from teenage marriages. Depending on the specific situation, there's often good reason for teenage marriages to break up.

Myth 2: Working Mothers are Destroying the Family by Neglecting Their Children.

"There's no evidence that children receive less attention from mothers who work outside the home than from mothers working inside the home," says Dr. Bane. "You have to divide the time into different categories: simple physical function and educational time or development time when a mother plays with the child. So far we haven't seen the amount of educational or development time vary much, whether or not the mother works outside the home." In fact, Dr. Bane finds evidence that working mothers, especially in the middle class, try to compensate for working by setting aside time exclusively for their children. "They probably read more to their children and spend more time in planned activities with them than nonworking mothers do." says Dr. Bane.
